The question on the cover is fucked up... but is commonly asked of the Asian American community to this day.

Propaganda and racist undertones have been portraying Asian immigrants as foreigners, outsiders, "not Americans" for centuries. This overlooked racism gets brushed aside or are so absurd we don't call them out as we should.

This leads to a very harmful and dangerous sentiment where "Just a little joke" can lead to very real harm both physically and emotionally. We need to take a look at the past and move forward with a more productive, compassionate, and inclusive future.

When a community reaches out for help we should listen at first sight not wait for the next wake-up call.
